RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research focuses on racial discrimination as a chronic psychosocial stressor that heightens African Americans' risk for physical (e.g., cardiovascular disease) and mental (e.g., depression and anxiety) health concerns. In particular, I focus on: (1) elucidating whether racial discrimination is a distinct stressor for African Americans with physiological and psychological consequences that exceed those of non-race-related stressors, (2) explicating the mechanisms that underlie the associations between racial discrimination experiences and deleterious outcomes, and (3) identifying person-related characteristics that serve as potential protective or vulnerability factors (e.g., racial identity) in the context of racial discrimination. My newest interests include: (1) structural racism, and (2) the development and implementation of interventions that alleviate the impacts of racism.
